

DJ for DJ's

Lurking in Ohlone's quiet pond is a creature yearning to devour things whole. The shark from "Jaws" you say? Well almost, but this one has feathers!

"D.J." (short for "Ducky Joe") was mysteriously placed in the pond on Monday night. With him came an anonymous note, which was attached to a door in Building 5, that stated he was a gift to Ohlone's radio station KOHL "for their splendid effort in radio communication."

According to Chet Gould, faculty adviser for KOHL, the white drake is a pleasant surprise.

Students who work at KOHL say the note advises lunchers to feed D.J. by throwing him "something" to eat each day, and invites anyone "trying to get rid of a female duck" to place her in the pond also.

However, Dean of Students William Blum says, "only male pals, please," to avoid a duck population explosion.

What does D.J. say to all of this? So far "quack-ically" nothing.

Photo Contest

The second annual National Library Week Photography Contest will be sponsored by the Learning Resource Center and SOC.

Entries for the contest, which is open to Ohlone students only, will be accepted until April 23.

All entries must be black and white.

Prizes are $25 for best of show,

"Godspell", which depicts the Gospel according to St. Matthew, will have three more performances on April 10, 15 and 16.

"The People, Yes" is based on the words and poetry of Carl Sandburg, contains the traditional folk songs from Sandburg's "American Song Bag" and features photography from Edward Steichen's, "Family of Man."

The production is an informal evening of words, pictures, songs and hope that try to echo what Sandburg had said to his brother-in-law, Edward Steichen, on his 89th and last birthday.

The Sandburg-Steichen production plays tonight and again April 11, 17, 18, 23 and 24. All evening performances for both plays begin at 8 o'clock and are held in Studio 22 on campus, Sunday performances are matinees starting at 2:30 p.m.

The production is an informal evening of words, pictures, songs and hope that try to echo what Sandburg had said to his brother-in-law, Edward Steichen, on his 89th and last birthday. "We should all glory in his world of men and women, torn with troubles and lost in sorrow, yet living on to love and laugh and play through it all."

Tickets are $3.50 for adults; $1.50 for children 12 years old and under and $2.50 for student body card holders. Senior citizen gold card holders will be admitted free. Tickets can be obtained at the College Bookstore, the Studio 22 Box Office and the Fremont Hub Book Mark.

The cast is composed of Kathleen M. Brady, Mark Harelik, Craig Jackson, Alicia Marsella, Gina Maria Piazza and Harry Snyder.
